That is, the IAM packet, the ACM packet, the CPG packet, the ANM packet, the REL packet and the RLC packet are transmitted/received between the telephone administration server provided on the telephone calling side and the telephone administration server provided on the call receiving side. In the closed-area telephone communication for limiting the telephone communication parties, the telephone number server provided inside the media router is employed. Also, in the open-area telephone communication not for restricting the telephone communication parties, since the telephone number server employed in the media router is used, the telephone number server employed in the IP transfer network is employed. In the open-area telephone communication, the IP communication line employed in the terminal-to-terminal connection control can be separated from the communication line used in the voice communication. While the telephone administration server contains the CIC administration table, the telephone administration server can record the transmission source telephone number, the destination telephone number, the starting time instant of the telephone communication, and the end time instant thereof. The operation administration server inquires the telephone administration server so as to acquire the transmission source telephone number, the destination telephone number, the starting time instant of the telephone communication and the end time instant thereof, which may be used in the charging operation.
